Global Studies B.A.

Global Studies Department

College of Liberal Arts

- Program Type: Baccalaureate
- Requirements for this program are current for Spring 2018
- Required credits to graduate with this degree: 120
- Required credits within the major: 38
- Degree: Bachelor of Arts

This program offers students the opportunity to study the interrelated processes shaping today's increasingly interdependent world. Students examine political, economic, cultural, and social processes of local communities, nation states, transnational businesses, and social movements around the globe. The program requires students to integrate theoretical knowledge about broad global processes with regionally focused detailed knowledge of social and cultural systems and language. Students complete a common set of core courses providing a broad overview of issues and approaches to global studies. Each student then chooses a thematic and regional concentration. Coursework is completed by selecting from relevant courses offered by a broad range of departments.

Program Delivery

This program is available:

- via classroom (the majority of instruction is face-to-face)

Admission Requirements

For information about University of Minnesota admission requirements, visit the Office of Admissions website.

General Requirements

All students are required to complete general University and college requirements including writing and liberal education courses. For more information about University-wide requirements, see the liberal education requirements.Required courses for the major or minor in which a student receives a D grade (with or without plus or minus) do not count toward the major or minor (including transfer courses).

Program Requirements

Students are required to take 4 semester(s) of any second language.

CLA BA degrees require 18 upper-division (3xxx-level or higher) credits outside the major designator. These credits must be taken in designators different from the major designator and cannot include courses that are cross-listed with the major designator. The major designator for the Global Studies BA is GLOS.

Students must formally enroll in the major at the advising office, 206 Social Sciences Building. Students must meet with an advisor to develop a program that meets major guidelines. Students must complete two sub-plans: one thematic and one regional concentration.

At least 14 upper-division credits in the major must be taken at the University of Minnesota - Twin Cities campus. Of the courses counting towards the BA, students must take at least 5 upper-division GLOS courses or courses cross-listed with GLOS.

A given course may only count towards one major requirement.

Students may earn a BA or a minor in global studies, but not both.

All incoming CLA freshmen must complete the First-Year Experience course sequence.

Core Courses

Take exactly 2 course(s) totaling exactly 8 credit(s) from the following:

- GLOS 3144 - Knowledge, Power, and the Politics of Representation in Global Studies (3.0 cr)
  or GLOS 3144H - Honors: Knowledge, Power, and the Politics of Representation in Global Studies (3.0 cr)
- GLOS 3145 - Global Modernity, the Nation-State, and Capitalism (3.0 cr)
  or GLOS 3145H - Honors: Global Modernity, the Nation-State, and Capitalism (3.0 cr)

Ways of Knowing

Take exactly 1 course(s) totaling 3 - 4 credit(s) from the following:

- ANTH 3003 - Cultural Anthropology (3.0 cr)

Experiential Learning

Students must participate in a relevant experiential learning opportunity through study abroad (at least 6 weeks), an internship (at least 100 hours), or a service-learning experience. Work completed in meeting these requirements may count toward the thematic or regional concentrations. Prior approval by a Global Studies advisor is required.

Capstone

Students must complete a capstone project that integrates their regional and thematic concentrations. Students must be either seniors or second-semester juniors and have completed either GLOS 3144 or GLOS 3145 to register for the capstone experience. Students who double major and choose to complete the capstone requirement in their other major may waive the Global Studies BA capstone, and they do not need to replace the 3 credits.

Take exactly 1 course(s) totaling 3 - 4 credit(s) from the following:

Capstone Seminar

In this course, students complete a 25-35 page academic research paper on a topic related to their thematic and/or regional concentrations. The course includes classroom instruction supporting independent research and writing in an interdisciplinary field, and it provides opportunities for one-on-one guidance and intellectual mentorship with faculty.

•GLOS 3981W - Capstone Seminar [WI] (3.0 cr)

•Honors Capstone

Honors students register for GLOS 3550V.

•GLOS 3985V - Honors Capstone Seminar [WI] (3.0 cr)

•Directed Study

This option is best for students who wish to (1) continue working closely with a specific faculty member on an ongoing research project, (2) propose a creative capstone experience (see Global Studies advisor for more information about this option), or (3) complete a summa cum laude thesis (consult with your honors advisor for more information about GLOS summa requirements).

•GLOS 3993 - Directed Study (1.0 - 5.0 cr)

Upper Division Writing Intensive within the major

Students are required to take one upper division writing intensive course within the major. If that requirement has not been satisfied within the core major requirements, students must choose one course from the following list. Some of these courses may also fulfill other major requirements.

Take 0 - 1 course(s) from the following:

Program Sub-plans

Students are required to complete one of the following sub-plans.

Cultural Production and Everyday Practice

What do literature, films, performances, artworks, music, and popular culture tell us about the world, and what do they do in the world to entertain, engage, inform, or deceive? How do new technologies and digital media transform previous forms of collective belonging and political expression? How are our sensibilities, values, and understandings of the world shaped by the global movement of people, material things, and ideas? Students selecting this track will explore these and other questions by integrating humanities and social science perspectives on such phenomena as globalization, transnationalism, modernity, colonialism, religious affiliations, nations and nationalism, gender and sexual identities, and perceptions of environment and place. They will be taught to think creatively and critically about the production and circulation of cultural forms at local, national, regional and transnational scales. This will serve as a basis for understanding not only contemporary forms of power and inequality, but also the aspirations, self-understandings and struggles of human communities in an increasingly interconnected world.

Students are required to complete two sub-plans for the major: one thematic concentration and one regional concentration. Courses must be chosen in consultation with a Global Studies advisor. The following course lists are not exhaustive. Students should consult the list of courses approved by the Global Studies advisor each semester to view additional options. Please note that extra Breadth courses for a specific region or theme may count toward the Electives requirement for the same specific region or theme. Cultural Production and Everyday Practice is a thematic concentration. It must be paired with a regional concentration of your choice.

Political Economy and Environmental Change

What are the contemporary economic, political, ideological, and cultural forces shaping the ever-changing global economy? How do transnational corporations and institutions influence the rules of the game, and with what consequences for inequality within and beyond the borders of the United States? What do we produce and where, how is global finance transforming the way the world works, and what are the dynamics of consumption, distribution, resource use and waste underlying 21st century capitalism? Is this system socially and environmentally sustainable? Students in this track will examine these questions from a "political economy" and "political ecology" perspective. They will also explore how grassroots and transnational social movements are attempting to articulate new visions of sustainable development, nature, climate change, and justice.

Students are required to complete two sub-plans for the major: one thematic concentration and one regional concentration. Courses must be chosen in consultation with a Global Studies advisor. The following course lists are not exhaustive. Students should consult the list of courses approved by the Global Studies advisor each semester to view additional options. Human Rights and Justice

What are human rights? How are they defined, critiqued, enacted, and achieved? This theme allows students to rethink categories such as rights, equality, and justice; to examine the role of law, memory, narrative, and media in representing mass violence; and to examine mechanisms promoting conflict resolution and cooperation in a global context. Courses address interstate relations as well as the ways in which such relations have been altered by the increasing role of non-governmental organizations, supranational organizations, and institutions of global governance. Global studies majors completing this track are encouraged to think about the ways in which governance, peace, and justice are influenced by both local and global social, political, and cultural processes.

Students are required to complete two sub-plans for the major: one thematic concentration and one regional concentration. Courses must be chosen in consultation with a Global Studies advisor. The following course lists are not exhaustive. Students should consult the list of courses approved by the Global Studies advisor each semester to view additional options. Please note that extra Breadth courses for a specific region or theme may count toward the Electives requirement for the same specific region or theme.

Human Rights and Justice is a thematic concentration. It must be paired with a regional concentration of your choice.

Global Health and Mobile Populations

Global pandemics, impacts of climate change, unprecedented movements of people and pathogens, civil unrest and displaced populations: it is difficult to avoid hearing about the seeming conflagration of forces and factors today that are causing widespread fear, questioning the integrity of national borders, the effectiveness of global governing agencies, the progress of science, and our collective capacity for economic and environmental change. Through the courses offered in this track, students should get a good sense of the imprint of history and of current geopolitical and economic policies conditioning patterns of disease and mobility, be able to critically analyze received understandings and representations of migrations and disease outbreaks, and the many factors shaping responses to these phenomena.

Individualized Region

Students are required to complete two sub-plans for the major: one thematic concentration and one regional concentration. Students may choose to design their own individualized regional concentration. All courses must be chosen in consultation with the Global Studies advisor.

Individualized Region is a regional concentration. It must be paired with a thematic concentration of your choice.

Breadth Courses

Take 1 or more course(s) totaling 3 or more credit(s). All courses must be chosen in consultation with the Global Studies advisor.

Elective Courses

Take 3 or more course(s) totaling 9 or more credit(s). All courses must be chosen in consultation with the Global Studies advisor.
