Sociology examines stability and change in social life by addressing the underlying patterns of social relations in formal organizations, in legal institutions, and in the family, economy, and political arena.

Coursework focuses on the criminal justice system and criminal behavior, mental health, families and close relationships, education, urban and rural communities, politics and policy formation, social movements and social change, diverse racial and ethnic groups, and social psychology. Faculty interests in the comparative study of social relations and institutions in various countries add an international emphasis to these areas of study. All sociology courses emphasize the skills of social inquiry necessary for analyzing patterns of social relationships.

Capstone

In the capstone, students will emphasize the relationship between a sociological perspective and critical thinking, effective communication, and meaningful civic engagement.

Before beginning the capstone, students must be a declared major and have completed all major coursework except one sociology elective course. Students are strongly advised to contact the department at least two semesters in advance of registration to insure they are on the capstone wait list.

Take 1 - 2 course(s) totaling 3 - 6 credit(s) from the following:

Students who double major and choose to complete the capstone requirement in their other major may waive the Sociology capstone, but they do need to replace the 3 credits with another sociology elective course.

Seminar

This course is designed to: a) provide students with an opportunity to reflect on what they have learned as a sociology major; b) use that knowledge to write sociological analyses based on community service learning; and c) think about how the knowledge, skills, and insights of the sociological enterprise can be used and applied outside of the University.
