- Degree: Masters Human Resources and Industrial Relations

Along with the program-specific requirements listed below, please read the General Information section of the catalog website for requirements that apply to all major fields.

Human resources and industrial relations (HRIR) students study the employment relationship. Teaching and research are guided by the belief that the employment relationship must be investigated through the lenses of different disciplines using systems thinking. The professional master of arts degree is for individuals interested in private and public sector careers in human resource management, labor relations, and related fields.

The curriculum is structured around the core HRIR areas of staffing, training, and development; compensation and benefits; and labor relations and collective bargaining. It is rooted in key concepts from the social and behavioral sciences and business, such as organizational behavior and theory, labor market analysis, leadership, and strategy. Quantitative analysis of employment problems and issues are also included. Master's candidates are encouraged to choose electives to support a generalist orientation with key business knowledge.

M.HRIR offers both full and part-time options.

Accreditation

This program is accredited by Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB).
